We are here to help you. why she left, and if she can be the one to get rid of it or if she's finding the root of the problem herself. The slideshow alone on the next page is worth the price of admission. You can click to navigate, but the narration makes it feel like you're actually there. The only oddity is that it is colorized, but the colors are vibrant and look beautiful. You can even add text to it, and plenty of people can share the experience and view the same slide show together, but I chose not to because I'm a content whore and like to check out the content of the blog I'm reading before I get bored and move on to the next thing. If you want to read the blog post from start to finish, click the image below: So, what do you think of this one? Are you going to try it out? Is it something you can see yourself using? Let me know in the comments! Happy Friday! It's another bad/ugly day and I am completely and utterly bored with this. I find myself thinking about things that have caused me a "crying shame" or feeling upset about a situation that I'm not really sure why I'm upset about it. So I'm just going to vent. Let me know what you think! I'm still in the middle of the college application process. sigh Just as I get the applications into the mail, I get a phone call from a school that doesn't have one of the choices that I had applied f678ea9f9e
